Retribution.

Cincinnati, June 14.—McGeehan the notorious desperado made famous by the tragic end of his counsel, Hon C L Vallandigham, who lost his life in explaining some points in the trial of McGeehan for the murder of a man named Myers was shot in his saloon at Hamilton, Ohio, last night. The constable hearing the shot ran to the saloon and found McGeehan lying dead in a pool of blood. The supposition is that some one entered the saloon and called for a drink and while McGeehan was serving the customer he was shot through the window from an alley. Although shot with several bullets in the temple and side of the face McGeehan had strength enough to get a revolver to defend him self, but fell dead on reaching the end of the counter. There is no clue to the murderer.

Troubles of the Black Hills Adventurers.

Chicago, June 14.—The Tribune's Sioux City special says thirty four of the Gordon party whose train was pillaged in Nebraska and property destroyed by government officials went before the U. S. commissioner yesterday and made sworn affidavits. Captain Walker and other officers perjured themselves in giving their testimony in the case. They say Walker himself stole a revolver which he was forced to give up at Randall. They swear that such property as pistols, tobacco and clothing was taken and not burned but appropriated by the soldiers, though few of the men can swear whether it was Walker's or men who robbed them and because of this the post's commission at Randall says the charge is not proven.

The Chicago Postoffice Building.

Chicago, June 14.—A Times' Washington special says the commission appointed by the secretary of the treasury to examine and report upon the Chicago postoffice building, returned to Washington and their report will be presented at an early day. Nothing official can be learned of the nature of the recommendation which they will make, but there is a good foundation for the statement that the commission will unanimously recommend that the work already performed in consequence of its unsubstantial character, be torn down to the foundation. A large amount of money has been expended in the building.

New Disclosures in the Brooklyn Scandal.

New York, June 14.—The Herald claims to have found the druggist who sold Beecher the poison which Moulton mentions in his testimony and produces an entry in his books of the charge under May 14, 1871 one ounce of prussic acid.

The recent rumors of new evidence against Beecher arose from the following facts. A few days after the close of the testimony in the case Morris was informed that Mr Louder, an upholsterer doing business on Fulton avenue, Brooklyn, would have been an important witness. His story is that years ago, before Mr Louder went into business for himself he had a job in upholstering at Tilton's residence, was in the hall way of the house when Beecher entered and was greeted by Mrs. Tilton. Beecher lifted Mrs. Tilton in his arms and carried her into her parlor. Incidentally or accidentally he (Louder) entered the parlor, unannounced, to get the tools he had left, and saw Mrs Tilton and Beecher in a compromising attitude. He kept the matter night until the scandal broke out when he related it to several friends but he spoke of the thing in the hall to servants and they said it was not an uncommon occurrence. Tilton's counsel sent for Louder but could get no information from him. He declared his business would be ruined should he be made a witness against Beecher, and the lawyers after considering the improbability of being able to force him to testify and the difficulty of having the case reopened, they did nothing publicly with the information. Louder has since been questioned by reporters but to all he declares he has nothing to say.

Beecher on the New Evidence.

Beecher told a reporter to-day that he was entirely ignorant of the things related in the Herald. They never occurred in his experience at all and so far as the article referred to him it was already denied and was wholly untrue. The present owners of the drug store where Beecher is said to have purchased the poison say the story is highly improbable. They don't believe any druggist in Brooklyn would sell prussic acid to any person without a prescription from a reliable doctor. Tilton's lawyers have decided to take no action about the new evidence.

TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

Interest Unabated.

New York, June 14.—The rush for seats at Brooklyn court this morning was as great as ever. After court was opened Beach called attention to the publication in the newspapers of the morning, and said before making an application or suggestion to the court he wished to consult with his associates what steps might be necessary in the matter.

Beach said his friend Porter had received a letter from W. O. Bartlett in which the latter disclaimed the authorship of the article quoted in summing up for plaintiff. He considered it proper to mention this fact as he had referred to Bartlett's connection with the journal in which the article appeared.

Fullerton said he had had a conversation with Porter and there was no difference between his brother and himself.

Porter rose and after saying the charge of improper advances had been expressly denied observed that he might have used too strong language in speaking on a subject so important.

Beach resumed his address to the jury. Referring to his remarks Thursday with reference to Mr Southard of New Jersey he said that a relative of the latter gentleman of the highest standing, had informed him that though a nervous affliction had induced Mr Southard to make excessive use of stimulants the charge of licentiousness had never been brought against him. He regretted his error and took pleasure in making the correction. Beach then spoke of Richards, brother of Mrs Tilton, and said he was one of the most respected lay members of the largest Christian denomination in this country. He had come to this court under process which could not be resisted and his demeanor on the stand showed him to be a most reluctant witness appreciating the delicacy of his position. Counsel did not press for anything more than a general statement of his observations, although if he had been driven to give details his testimony might have been more painful to himself and detrimental to the character of his sister. Beach read from an article by Rev. Dr. Curry in the Christian Advocate which sets forth that cruel and brutal attacks had been made upon Richards by the defendant's counsel.

Beach spoke of the astonishing declaration made by Evarts that $6,000 of the $7,000 paid by Bowen was taken by Woodruff & Robinson. It had been produced and it was clearly shown that all of the $7,000 was used by Tilton for his own purposes. The statement of the learned gentleman was a bold misstatement, made he supposed unconsciously. Beach said he had answered a number of suggestions made by his friends in their argument for the defense and would proceed with his own argument. The jury could not have failed to observe the peculiar circumstances under which the case has been introduced to them. There was some doubt as to whether Beecher was the real defendant in this case as the management of the defense had been conducted by Plymouth Church and the organized array of its friends and had been presented every day in this court room under lead of their gallant usher, who at one time appeared to take control of the room. Every effort had in this matter been made to produce the impression upon the public and jury that he had great respect for Plymouth Church and it was a great church. It was a wealthy church having it was said three thousand communicants. It was the jury of the vicinage to which the counsel for defense would gladly refer the case. It had been referred to this jury once in the church investigation but it was an aggressive church and it came into this court at first as if on a gala day, and as if Beecher, with Plymouth Church at his heels had but to enter the court in order to secure a verdict. After alluding to the floral displays made by the defense early in the trial Beach said that for a time it was almost dangerous for any one to approach this bar who was not in sympathy with Beecher. Counsel referred to the constant attendance of Mrs. Beecher as illustrating the truth of Scott's lines beginning, "O woman in our hours of ease," but even believing in her husband's innocence as he assumed she did why did she come every day to hear testimony to her husband's infidelity? There had been an organized attempt to influence the public and jury by these outside aids. Another lady had been forced to attend through the most of the trial coming day after day to the arena to where her virtue was a football of contention. He said Beecher had not denied the charge that he withdrew Mrs Tilton from her husband. When it became apparent that this case was to be investigated Mrs. Ovington was used as an agent to place Mrs Tilton under Beecher's influence and she succeeded in her task. Mrs. Tilton gave her testimony before the church committee in Beecher's behalf. She abandoned her husband's house for Mrs Ovington and was brought here to sit near as Beecher's supporter in the trial of this cause. All would remember the demonstrative greetings which used to pass between Beecher and Mrs Tilton in this room.

What indecency was this? If Beecher was an innocent man he would not have needed all these exterior shows and trappings for his defense. He did not object to the natural show of sympathy by the friends of an accused person, but he did desire that a prearranged display of this character should be kept within the bounds of propriety. Beach urged that the law was no respecter of persons and under it all should be viewed alike when standing in the light of the same evidence. The feelings of the jury must often have been moved by the sight merely of Beecher in this court room and must have been stirred to sympathy by his appeals to heaven upon the stand, but such feelings and such sympathies were not justice and were not law. The counsel then dwelt on the majestic reign of law in nature and the evils which resulted from all its violations. So it was with the law of society. If the jury violated it in this case a pernicious result would inevitably follow. They would set a precedent which would tend to demoralize society and lead to injustice, wrong and suffering in the future. If there was any truth in nature and religion it was this, that every violation of law was followed by a punishing consequence. The jury had nothing to do with all these outside influences but were to decide the case according to their oaths and upon the evidence to which their attention would be invited. Recess.

After recess Beach resumed his address to the jury. Although many persons had expected that he would first apply for a reopening of the case on the ground of newly discovered evidence, Morris when spoken to on the subject at recess declined to say whether counsel for plaintiff would take any action of this character.

Beach said that it was obvious that a just legal result would not be reached if he was precluded from speaking of Beecher as he appeared in the light of the evidence, and if the jury were governed by sentimental considerations instead of by evidence. Nor could they in this way reach the verdict which the world would pronounce. He did not know by what process counsel for defense reached their conclusion that the previous life of Beecher had been spotless. As the court would doubtless instruct the jury that counsel for the plaintiff if they had their hands full of evidences that Beecher had led a licentious life would have had no right to present any which was not interwoven in this case. They might tend to his own infamy. A high legal authority in a late trial in England in which the Prince of Wales was involved had ruled that he was not obliged to answer whether or not he had been guilty of adultery. One of the strongest points in this case and upon which counsel for defense founded one of their strongest appeals to the jury was the fact that both the alleged adulterer and accusing husband had ascribed to the implicated wife a character of exalted purity and piety. There was no reason to doubt the sincerity of either but we must judge both according to their characters. Beecher undoubtedly regarded Mrs Tilton as a religious enthusiast and had reason to believe her so. Tilton took in view her idolatry of Beecher to which this enthusiasm led her which induced her to believe that what he taught her couldn't be wrong. He (Mr Beach) did not understand this idea looking at it like a man of ordinary common sense but both Beecher and Tilton knew Mrs Tilton better than he and understood her religious temperament. Counsel read from one of Mrs Tilton's letters to her husband where she declared she had given her husband a true account of Beecher's visits and spoke of the trinity formed by the three—her husband, Beecher and herself. Here he said we saw her idea of the relation between herself and these two men. In another letter she says referring to her husband and Beecher, "Oh how my heart yearns over you two men and hope you will be come reconciled to one another." In another part speaking of Beecher she says, "I do love him very dearly." It was a very dangerous position for a woman to be placed in when he could identify another with her husband. Here was a remarkable letter written on the 9th February, 1868 in which she says, "I cannot wish you home for I am persuaded you are happier where you are, and though I am longing for your presence I would not wish you home and I am haunted with the idea that your dear head will soon be bowed with agony." And this was after years of womanly ministrations to Beecher, he pressing his caresses on her chastity and she with womanly instinct resisting in the agony of prayer. Was it surprising that with a man of his temperament and passion these people fell or that Mrs Tilton should attribute this fall to her spirit of self sacrifice? A woman doesn't fall from passion but from her love and whatever her demand ed and she saw nothing but beauty in it. It was no more unnatural to suppose she would lie for Beecher than that she would leave her home for him. The jury might remember Gen. Sickles who shot the adulterer when he caught with his wife and was tried and acquitted. The government honored him by placing him in an honorable position. He took his wife back and condoned the offense but the world knew and he knew there were mitigating circumstances in her case. Counsel could not tell how Mrs Tilton was overcome but Beecher, in one of his sermons says the adulterer confuses her judgment and is the accessory and deliberately and heartlessly damns the confiding victim. This was the manner in which Beecher alone could describe. Says the Scripture, "There are four things passing my comprehension. The way of an eagle in the air, the way of a serpent upon a rock, the way of a ship on the sea and the way of a man with a maiden." The question at issue in this case was whether the influences of the great church and its minister would overcome the truth and the issues of justice on behalf of Beecher. An appeal was made to our sympathies and judgment and it was very hard to judge such a man. It was very hard to condemn such a man but the question is whether law and justice shall prevail over the influence of Beecher and his position. The jury knew before they were impaneled that the efforts that were made on behalf of the first church of Beecher by the community but some circumstances had arisen which had since changed the face of affairs and their verdict had already been anticipated by the world. The jury were to consider whether the case would be determined by the principles and legal questions given to us by law for our wisdom and guidance. Counsel then turned the defendant and endeavored to fix upon Tilton the blame of bringing out the case and charges of his unhuman acts preferred against Tilton and Moulton.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Jones says he did not get Stucked.

San Francisco, June 14.—The Post this evening publishes a report of an interview with J. P. Jones in which he is made to say after contradicting the report of being stucked on Wall street and stating he bought a controlling interest in the Panama railroad as an investment and to assist him in building up Santa Monica; that what the Panama road wants is to permit vessels of all nationalities to trade between the Atlantic and Pacific States via the Isthmus. That within 60 days after such trade was thrown open there would be a line of English steamers laid on between New York and San Francisco which could not be bought off and the railroad combinations to put up freights would be at an end. The Senator thought there was no reason to hope for such modification of navigation laws at the next session of Congress.

THE TERRITORIES.

The Tacoma Tribune will soon remove to Seattle.

Eight thousand bushels of oats were sold in Lewis county (W. T.) last week. They are delivered at the railroad station now at 45 cents a bushel.

The Los Angeles, on the 3d inst. carried from Olympia 210 tons of produce, bolts and coal and from Seattle 50 tons of miscellaneous freight for San Francisco.

The Tribune understands that several parties in Oregon have had their attention upon the Puyallup river with a view to opening it for navigation and that the matter is likely to assume a favorable shape at almost any time. Several gentlemen have been over for the more thorough examination into the matter.

Since the 15th of May Mr Edward Giddings has been collector of internal revenue for the district of Washington Territory, supplanting in that office Major J. R. Hayden. His two deputies are Mr C. B. Bagley of Olympia relieving Mr R. G. O'Brien, and Captain J. L. Putnam at Walla Walla, relieving Capt. B. H. Tuttle.

According to a contemporary, 50 cents only are now charged on the steamer North Pacific for fare from any part of Puget Sound to Victoria and the same coming the other way. A dollar was the lowest price ever before asked for that service. Almost any one can stand the extravagance of a trip on the Sound this summer.

The Tacoma Tribune of last Saturday says: Between 10 o'clock of Wednesday night and daylight of the next morning this week there was a substantial movement in our harbor such as is seldom seen here or elsewhere on Puget Sound. First, the powerful tug Goliath came up from below, bringing in the ship Dashing Wave and barkentine S. M. Stetson, succeeded by the steamers North Pacific and Favorite, from Olympia, the steamer Politkofsky from down the Sound with the ship Shirley in tow, and last the propeller Etta White bringing a raft of logs to the mill company. The fleet consisted therefore, of three large sail vessels of an aggregate tonnage of 2,900 tons and of five steamers of 1,500 tons—eight vessels of 4,400 tons. The harbor was a constant echo of steam whistles and the mill wharf was the scene of rare commercial activity.

Backed Down.—Charley Backus, the practical joker, was in a small town in Connecticut the other day and as he started for New York he stood on the rear platform of the last car of the train. Just as the whistle was blown and the cars began to move Backus espied a big fellow lounging in the depot, and shaking his fist at him in assumed rage he shouted: "Oh there you are, you villain! I've been looking for you all over this cursed town. Oh you knave, you thief, you scoundrel!" At this time the train was rapidly moving out of the depot and Backus wildly shook his fist at the astonished stranger screaming: "Don't I wish I had time to get off and thrash you, you scoundrel!" To the horror of the minstrel joker, the train was stopped and backed into the depot. Backus made a rush for his compartment in the drawing room car and locked himself in just as the brawny fisted depot lounger boarded the train and howled: "Where is that duffer who has been looking all over this cre town for me?" Backus kept himself in his prison until he reached New York.

Lost His Opportunity.—A Georgia paper tells the brief story of John Boyd, a white man, who was convicted of stealing two horses and two mules in Noxubee county, that State. When asked what he had to say Mr Boyd declared he had "always intended to be honest and that he did not think of stealing the mules more than a month before he did it." Referring to the time when he was arrested by the officers of the law he said he was—as was natural—straining every nerve to get away and that if he had succeeded he was satisfied he would have made "a good citizen."

There are several parties out prospecting from Roseburg who claim to have struck remarkably rich claims.

Eight mining claims were recorded in Roseburg last week.

A drove of about 2,000 sheep passed through Roseburg, for Nevada, Thursday.

The Dixie (Polk county) camp-meeting will begin on Thursday, the 19th inst.

Salem will have circuit court, Congregational Association and Pioneers' reunion this week.

And now comes the Pendleton Tribune and proposes to celebrate Independence Day by having a rousing time.

The State Manufacturing Company will soon resume the business of manufacturing boots and shoes at the penitentiary at Salem.

Miss Saxon, of Roseburg, while horseback riding was thrown off, and sustained some severe bruises. No serious damage done.

Mr Arrington, living ten miles from Roseburg, has a field of wheat containing 85 acres, from which he expects to get 4,000 bushels.

A. Banta, of Reno, Nevada, wants to know the whereabouts of John Worth, who was on the way to Oregon in 1846. John is a pioneer, and ought to show himself to-day.

Union and Umatilla counties have taken a commendable interest in public schools and their population and business are increasing as a consequence.

The rain last week raised the Umatilla river so much that Dave Wright came near drowning himself and team while trying to ford it, and McKay creek was on last Thursday, almost impassable.

Last Saturday, while Mr. Carlile, of Oakland, was riding through the Whitmore gap he saw a cougar catch a hog. Putting his dogs after it he succeeded in killing it. It measured nine feet long.

Sealed proposals for building the Episcopal church in Pendleton will be received by the building committee until Saturday, the 19th day of June, when the bids will be opened by them and Rev. L. H. Wells.

Baker City Academy, under the charge of Prof Parritt, has been prosperous, but as the professor has been elected principal of Dalles high school the people of Baker City want to secure a choice teacher as his successor.

Thirty thousand dollars were received at Roseburg by express, Wednesday, from San Francisco, by A. T. Green and counted over by him to the Coos Bay Wagon Road Company as part payment for their road and lands.

The Pendleton Tribune says the crickets are doing serious damage to a few farms on Butter creek. Mr Doherty has lost twelve acres of grain already and the crickets still keep coming. As yet, however they are confined to a small piece of territory.

The Farmer says an emigrant visited the place of Mr Henry Shrum, six miles from Salem southeast and took a stroll through a piece of very luxuriant fall wheat to see what Oregon wheat was like. He pulled a stalk seven feet two inches high and took it away for a sample, the head of which was in proportion, and gave it up that it beat anything he ever saw elsewhere.

The Plaindealer says: "The Chetco Wagon Road Company, of Jackson, Josephine and Curry counties are steadily pushing their plans to perfection, and some of these fine mornings the railroad company, the Canyon road company, Roseburg, and everybody else, will wake up to find this road opened and the principal portion of the travel and freighting of Southern Oregon and California turned in that direction."

The Baptist Association closed a very interesting session last Saturday. There were fifty-four clerical and lay delegates from the different churches who were handsomely entertained by the community around Turner. The meetings of the association were held in the church at that place. Rev. A. J. Hunsaker was moderator, Rev. C. H. Mattoon, clerk, Mr W. Stannard, treasurer. A visiting brother from Canada, Rev. A. E. M. James, was present and also the Sunday school worker and Evangelist Rev. Mr Baker.

The Salem Statesman says: Mr Chapman, of the Siletz reservation, writes to O. A. Brown that Mr Fairchild has lately had an interview with the Salmon river Indians who all decline to go to either the Siletz or Grand Round agency. They declare their intention to take up land in their own country in accordance with the late law of Congress empowering them to hold land. They had been well posted on that subject by some one before Fairchild met them, are fully aware of their rights, and are determined to avail themselves of the privileges granted by the late act. It remains to be decided whether any agent has authority to remove them without their consent, and from the general talk of their head men, it is not thought probable that they will voluntarily give up their country without being well paid for it. Under similar conditions very few people would.

The assessor of Marion, who has traveled over that county, informs the Record that the law stands as passed by the last legislature. The gross amount of taxable property will be largely in excess of former assessments and will be somewhat larger in any event. He says there are many new comers in Marion county and he finds none who are displeased with the country. All are entirely satisfied and appear to be doing well. Those who have not means find work readily and go right at it. Crop prospects were never better for both fall and spring sowed wheat and the area of wheat sowed is at least one fourth greater than in 1875. He thinks the population so far as he has canvassed the county will show an increase of fifteen per cent since 1874. What little corn has been planted don't look well, and this is no new thing as Oregon is not a corn country. Fruit will be very abundant, especially the smaller varieties. Orchards generally bear well, especially apples, pears, plums, cherries, etc. Gardens show some touches of late frost but are generally showing to best advantage.

Remedy for Nightmare.—Slight derangement of the digestive or other functions is often sufficient to occasion a temporary delirium in children commencing during sleep and prolonged after waking. The suffering is great and the condition an alarming one to parents and friends. The mental excitement is so intense as to resist impressions from without to an extraordinary degree. It is here that the associations of smell can be used more effectively than any others to break up the morbid train. A good whiff of cologne almost always brings the little sufferer back to its ordinary world; or a little ammonia may be used. But an odor which is agreeable is probably more effective than one which is merely pungent. It is a common observation that memories and associations are awakened by odors more than by the impressions of any other sense. In cases of nightmare the strong familiar smell seems to break up the train of abnormal mental excitement.—Journal of Chemistry.

Virtue in Whistling.—An old farmer once said to us that he would not have a hired man on his farm who did not habitually whistle. He always hired whistlers. Said he never knew a whistling laborer to find fault with his food, his bed, or complain of any little extra work he was asked to perform. Such a man was generally kind to children and to animals in his care. He would whistle a chilled lamb into warmth and life, and would bring in his hatful of eggs from the barn without breaking one of them. He found such a man more careful about closing gates, putting up bars and seeing that the nuts on his plow were all properly tightened before he took it into the field. He never knew a whistling hired man to kick or beat a cow, nor drive her on a run into a stable. He had noticed that the sheep he fed in the yard and shed gathered around him as he whistled without fear. He never had employed a whistler who was not thoughtful and economical.

TRANSPORTATION TO OREGON.

STEAMSHIP TRAVEL AS "ACTUALLY" WITNESSED—WHAT OREGON NEEDS—PROSPECTS IN WESTERN MISSOURI.

Butler, Bates Co., Mo., June 1, 1875.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

After a residence of about four years in the State of Oregon I left Portland about Dec 16th last, for the East via San Francisco and Panama. About the sea voyage I have nothing to say, as many of your readers have either been over or read many accounts of it. This communication has been elicited by two articles which appeared in the Weekly Oregonian of the 8th ult. One, an editorial article headed "Steamship Accommodation" and the other copied from the S. F. Chronicle headed "More Railroad Facilities Oregon's Greatest Need." Now, as one who has "been there" and knows how it is himself, I confidently say that the articles referred to are very sensible—strike the nail exactly on the head, and express the reason precisely why nine-tenths of the people who go to the Pacific coast stop in California. Being a man of limited means, and generally "going it alone," I have tried most of the various modes by which men travel. Have tried steamship, both cabin and steerage, railroad both first-class and emigrant, have traveled by stage and horseback, and I can say without the least hesitation, that the most abominable way in which I ever traveled was in the steerage of one of Holladay's steamships.

During the whole time that I was in Oregon the continued cry was, "We want more people to develop and build up our State." Now the way to get your State peopled is to furnish better and quicker facilities by which to reach you. We all know that a large portion of the people who constitute the builders of a country or State, such as farmers, mechanics etc. are people of moderate means, who do not feel able to pay $30 in coin to be taken such a distance nor do they feel like being cooped up like pigs for three or four days at a time and made to take their food like the aforesaid animals.

Since I came back to the States I have been interrogated by a great many people, all anxious to learn something concerning that State and almost every one anxious to know if there is not some other way to get there except by sea. To all who have asked information I have endeavored to give as correct a description of the country as I could, the different ways to get there, etc.

The outlook for this country (Western Missouri) is anything but encouraging, that is, for the present season. Nearly all the fall wheat was winter killed, and farmers are afraid to sow spring wheat as the chinch bugs almost invariably destroy it. In many places the grasshoppers have destroyed the young corn, oats and flax, and the fields and gardens of many whole townships are as destitute of vegetation as the streets of Portland. This destruction of crops is felt with great force, coming as it does just after the terrible drouth of last summer. From many localities appeals have been made to the county and State authorities for aid, it being claimed that many were actually in a starving condition. A business engagement keeps your correspondent here at present, but if, at the end of a few months matters do not change considerably he will again take Horace Greeley's advice and "go west."

Your very valuable paper comes to me weekly and among three or four papers which I read, none is so welcome as it. Now, sir, what you Oregonians need is a railroad connecting you with the Union or Central Pacific at some point in Utah, and then you will get people enough, unless you like Californians, are getting them too fast already.

Yours, etc., J. R. SMITH.

The Pendleton Tribune says: A row occurred on the 7th inst. out on Birch creek, between Joseph Pearson and Eli Keeney, but as we don't intend to get "mixed up" in the affair one way or the other we only state that, in the course of the altercation, Keeney shot Pearson in the fleshy part of one of his arms and Pearson knocked Keeney down and stamped his breast severely, when they were separated.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 15, 1875.

WESTON'S DEFENSE.

And now comes the Salem Mercury and attempts to defend the infamous conduct of the Governor of New Hampshire and his council in casting out the votes for a Republican State Senator who had a clear majority and giving a certificate of election to the Democratic candidate who had been overwhelmingly defeated before the people. The Mercury cites a section of the New Hampshire election laws, which reads:

> "The full christian and surname of every person voted for, with the initial letter or letters of the middle name, and the usual abbreviations for junior, second, third and the like, shall be written or printed upon every ballot; and every ballot not thus prepared, shall be regarded as a blank and not counted."

Pretending to act under this law the Governor and his council cast out between 3,000 and 4,000 ballots for Natt. Head, because, on strict inquiry, it was discovered that the name by which the candidate was christened by his parents was not Natt. Head, but Nathaniel Head. But he had been known for years as Natt. Head; was commonly spoken of and written of and to by the name of Natt. Head; had received federal appointments as Natt. Head. In short, though a man of some prominence, he was known by the public by no other name than Natt. Head. A man's name for the purpose of this statute is the name by which he is known in community. The object of the law is to avoid all confusion and uncertainty as to the identity of the person voted for, and it is the height of absurdity to say the law is not complied with unless the name on the ticket is the same as that in the family Bible. President Grant's true name is not Ulysses S. Grant, but Hiram Ulysses Grant, the change having been made through a mistake when he was appointed to the Military Academy. Would these Democratic lawyers claim that a vote for him under the name of Ulysses S. Grant would be void under the New Hampshire law?

But, as if to make its position appear not wholly partisan, the Mercury pretends to cite Republican authority on the same side. It says:

> On this subject the Boston Herald, a radical Republican journal, remarks as follows:
> "We are inclined to think that the Republicans, put in the same place, would have done the same thing. There is no reason in their characterization of the Democratic action as a conspiracy. It is merely the exercise of a legal right. Nor does the evidence show that Gov. Weston failed to do his duty toward getting the opinion of the court. Chief Justice Cushing distinctly says that he decided that it was not practicable to get the opinion of the court at the time specified. Those correspondents at Concord who predict all sorts of trouble from the 'conspiracy' are needlessly agitated. We do not believe that the sober people of New Hampshire, though they do get warm in politics, will feel the need of federal bayonets to settle their election disputes."

The Boston Herald is not a "radical Republican journal," it is an independent journal, and we are glad to be able to say, the only independent journal in which we have seen any attempt to bolster up the fraud. It may be true that Republican politicians similarly situated, would have done just what Weston and his abettors did; but that is saying no more than that Weston and his abettors are no better than a lot of Republican politicians, which is certainly no very flattering comparison. If the Democratic organs wish to secure a popular verdict in justification of the course of their party in this matter, they must find some ground that men can stand on without being ashamed. It takes something more than the mere force of party spirit to control the judgment of the people now. All that is past. A proposition must be reasonable and honest now, or it will be rejected. The strict, technical construction of the law, by which it is sought to justify this New Hampshire fraud, is neither reasonable, nor honest, and it will be rejected by the people.

WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THE CAUCUS?

An Eastern exchange has a somewhat lengthy discussion of the question, "What shall we do with the caucus?" The paper referred to, though professedly an organ of the Republican party, has come to the conclusion that "the caucus, as in vogue in both the Republican and Democratic parties, is an instrument to stifle the consciences of men with, and is indefensible from any point of view." This is what the Independents have been urging from the first. Any system that interferes with the right of every person, whether in his individual capacity or as a representative of others, to exercise his own individual judgment and follow his conscience in all its public duties, is a system that admits of no defense. Just that is what the caucus is for. It is a device to silence those who, if left free, might not carry out the wishes of the party managers. It is an invention to enable the politicians to hold the people in subjection.

The question of what to do with an acknowledged evil, which is not in the nature of things ineradicable, ought not to be a difficult one to answer. What to do with the caucus? Why, abolish it. Refuse to go into it or to be bound by its decrees. That is a plain, speedy and adequate remedy for its abuses, and a remedy that is easily applied. It requires no sacrifice. It requires nothing but a little moral courage. Nay, it scarcely requires that, for the common sentiment of people whose good opinions are worth having is against the caucus. A man can hardly get a more unenviable reputation than that of a skillful manipulator of caucuses. So, there is no public sentiment to be faced in order to overthrow the caucus. Nor is it necessary that one should be "impracticable," an "irreconcilable," and decline all associated action. Men can consult with each other, can exchange ideas, can present their respective views, enforcing them if they choose with earnest argument, without attempting to compel acquiescence by means of the anathemas of the political organization to which they belong. Intelligent men, holding similar views on general matters of public concern, will naturally confer with each other, and will to some extent accommodate their differences of opinion in order to co-operate together. Those who attempt anything without this seldom accomplish their purposes. Party consultations are therefore proper and right. It is in the compulsory character of the caucus that its evil consists. Refuse obedience to its decrees and the desired reform is accomplished. This has been done so much within the last year or two that it has already come to be regarded as no breach of party usage. The Republicans of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota lately defied the caucus decrees, and suffered nothing in their standing as Republicans. Blaine, Poland, Garfield and several other of the most prominent Republicans of the United States last winter refused obedience to the behests of the national caucus of their party on one of the most important political questions that have arisen for years, without in any degree impairing their standing in their party. The question, what should we do with the caucus, is practically solved already.

THE FARE AND FREIGHT QUESTION.

Only yesterday the independent political movement was inaugurated, one of the main causes that produced it being the attitude of the two old political parties toward the railways. Both the Democratic and the Republican parties were controlled by the railway companies to an extent that reduced the legislatures and even the courts of justice in many places to the position of mere conveniences for the use of the corporations in giving their plans and exactions the form and force of law. The corporations denied the constitutional right of the State legislatures to regulate the rates of freight and fare on the railways, and the politicians of both parties echoed that denial as the easiest way to avoid the responsibility of taking any position with relation to the policy of such legislation. The Independents, on the contrary, asserted that the railway corporations were creatures of the legislatures, and were subject to legislative control; that as they enjoyed the benefits of their quasi public character in being allowed to exercise the right of eminent domain and take the land of private citizens for their road-beds, without the consent of the owner, they must also accept the burdens imposed by that character and submit to legislative supervision. And in pursuance of this view the Independents demanded that the State legislatures should take hold of the matter and enact laws to prevent extortionate rates and unjust discriminations within their respective territorial jurisdictions, and that like regulations should be made by Congress for inter-State traffic. All recollect how, only last year, the Republican organs denounced the demand of the Independents on this subject as unconstitutional, impracticable and visionary, while the candidates of the party, afraid to face the yeomanry of the country with such propositions, dodged the question by any and every shift they could invent.

But the world moves. The parties are coming to their senses by degrees. While the Republican papers, turning their back on the very recent past, give their unqualified approval of the position taken by the Independents on the Louisiana affair, the Force Bill &c., and a Democratic convention in Ohio declares for an honest payment of the national debt, the Republican State convention of California plants itself squarely on the Independent ground on the railway convention, by resolving:

> That the State has a right to regulate fares and freights within her borders, and the general government has the same power in inter-State lines; that the people should exact pledges from candidates for the legislature, binding themselves to reduce fares and freights to a fair standard and abolish all unjust discrimination.

If the Independents may not be allowed to boast over this as a victory of their own, it will, at least, be conceded that to their efforts alone is due the triumph of this principle in the Republican party.

WHY NOT MAKE IT UNANIMOUS?

We learn that the call for a people's city ticket is being signed by almost every citizen to whom it is presented, including a great many who have always heretofore acted with the Republican organization, even in local elections. Some of the persons who were candidates on the Republican ticket at the last election have joined in the call. The sentiment of the entire community, with the exception of here and there an individual, is in favor of keeping party politics out of our municipal government. It is to be hoped those who have called for a party convention will, upon reflection, come to the conclusion that it is better to take no further action than may be necessary to preserve their organization—if they consider that an object of any moment—and will not attempt to run a party ticket. There is no necessity for any contest, and the movers of the party convention, we take it, do not expect to be able to poll any very considerable vote on election day. Why not all unite in the choice of a good ticket, without respect to party.

Ex-Congressman Sypher, of Louisiana, has gone into bankruptcy. His liabilities are stated at $100,000, and his assets at a cipher. He was a fraud in Congress and no more entitled to his seat than any other adventurer who might have claimed the election. He voted right, however, on the Civil Rights Bill and Force Bill.

The best analysis we have seen of Grant's third term letter is that of the Pittsburgh Leader, which says: "Grant writes Harry White relative to a third term, substantially that you can't almost always know what you least expect the most, and if circumstances arise, then it will be still more so, in the same way—as it were.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 1[illegible] 1875

CITY.

A Close Scratch —Monday afternoon while the express train was on the way to [illegible] one of the railway employes who was [illegible] board the cars had a very narrow escape from fatal injuries or instant death The [illegible] of one of the car wheels was heating [illegible] and had to be closely watched [illegible] on it was thundering along at [illegible] the train was [illegible] the man thoughtlessly we might [illegible] rate, the [illegible] leaned far over the side of one [illegible] platforms to enable him to look down [illegible] watch the boxing Just as he was [illegible] his neck and watching the [illegible] the train shot past a switch signal One [illegible] of the sharp diamond shaped piece of [illegible] the man on one side of [illegible] struck the man near the temple cutting a severe [illegible] and tearing away the skin and flesh for [illegible] distance of two or three inches All the [illegible] was inflicted in a second's time and [illegible] man had no time to realize the extent of the danger to which he was exposed until it [illegible] passed. Had he inclined his head but an [illegible] further from the line of the moving [illegible] the blow would have resulted fatally [illegible] probably killed him instantly It was a dearly purchased piece of experience but will teach [illegible] a life-long lesson about recklessly exposing himself when a train of cars are in motion.

Should be Stopped —A gentleman who resides on Eighth street informs us that a number of boys are in the habit of using that thoroughfare, from Main to Mill streets as a regular race-course Every evening between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock a number of boys assemble in that portion of the city and race up and down the street at the top of their speed They shout and yell and by their disorderly proceedings disturb persons who reside in that vicinity Besides being in direct violation of the ordinance such conduct is liable to result in serious, if not fatal accidents. In tearing up and down the street at breakneck speed persons who may happen to be crossing are liable to be run over We are in possession of the names of several boys who indulge in such reprehensible sport and unless they desist we shall feel constrained to publish them

Hand Sawed —Julien Vieilhomme, a Frenchman, employed at the factory of the Oregon Furniture Manufacturing Company, had the misfortune yesterday morning to cut his right hand in a shocking manner with a small circular saw. He was engaged in sawing some small blocks of wood when the accident occurred. Contrary to the manner of careful cabinet workmen Vieilhomme allowed his right hand to slip in between the saw and the 'guide' as he reached after a block. Instantly the saw struck his hand, severing nearly all the bones of the knuckle and lacerating the flesh in a painful manner Soon after the accident the wounded man was taken to the office of Dr Chapman and the proper surgical attention bestowed With the exception of the fore finger the doctor thinks the entire hand can be saved

Union Meetings.—In conducting the union meetings Rev E P Hammond will observe the following programme He will preach to [illegible] the rink on Wednesday Thursday and Friday evenings at 7 30 o clock On [illegible] evening he will address some [illegible] words especially to the Masonic fraternity with regard to the head stone of the [illegible]. On Tuesday, at 6 o clock he will [illegible] meetings for children and youth at [illegible] Tuesday and Wednesday, at 8 30 [illegible], he will conduct a Bible-reading and [illegible] meeting in the Baptist church corner [illegible] and Alder streets and on Thursday [illegible] and Saturday, in the Presbyterian [illegible] corner of Third and Washington [illegible]

Letter from Hongkong —Mrs Walter Moffett received a letter last evening, from her husband dated Hongkong, May 15 The letter states that the bark Edward James arrived in [illegible] at Hongkong on the 26th of April. On [illegible] from Honolulu to her destination a [illegible] was washed overboard and lost. No particulars furnished The cargo was disposed of advantageous terms, Mr Moffett informs his wife that his health is excellent [illegible] not state in the letter, when he expected to return

Fine Stock —Says the evening cotemporary: "We are reliably informed that Mr W, [illegible] will locate in this valley on a farm [illegible] this city He will bring with [illegible] La Grande a fine band of thoroughbred horses, cattle, hogs and chickens, which he has imported from the East and raised [illegible] will also publish a Thoroughbred Stock Journal and Record (of pedigrees), which will appear monthly, and be something not published elsewhere on the Pacific coast

Church Dedicated —On Sunday the Catholic Church at Gervais was dedicated by the [illegible] Rev, B Delorme, V G The ceremonies were begun by the procession marching around the building, during which time the [illegible] 'Miserere' was chanted Then followed the Litany of the Saints after which [illegible] High Mass was intoned by the celebrant, Rev B Delorme, and Fathers Ver[illegible] and Dilman acting as deacons and subdeacons

Erroneous —We are informed by the attorney in the case, that the statement made in [illegible] evening paper to the effect that ' the circuit court for this county, on stipulation of [illegible] dismissed the further consideration [illegible] both of the injunction cases in regard to [illegible] west side railroad, which lately created so [illegible] rumpus among officers and employes of [illegible] company," is entirely foundationless [illegible] such action has been taken by the court

The Excursion.—There is every prospect [illegible] large turn-out to the moonlight excursion [illegible] given by the City Rifles, to morrow evening. The weather clerk is earnestly requested to stand by the company, and give them a [illegible] show than they had a year ago The company will leave their armory at 7 30 P M [illegible], and at 8 o'clock the boat, with [illegible] will leave the O S N Co's wharf Let [illegible] send while there is a chance.

Constitutional Convention.—Rev P S [illegible] has made arrangements with the railroad company, whereby special round trip tickets at half the usual rates will be issued to delegates and their wives who may attend the convention in this city on the 17th inst [illegible] will be good from the 16th to the 22d [illegible] inclusive, and delegates may procure [illegible] at the different stations on the morning of the 16th

Weather Report —From the records of the U. S. Signal Station of Observation Portland, Oregon June 14, 1875

Firemen's Exempt Meeting —Last evening the regular quarterly meeting of the Firemen's Exempt Association was held in police court room. There was present a large number of the members of the association No business of special importance transacted—only a collection of fines and dues and the usual routine

Broken —Yesterday the O S N Co's telegraph line was prostrated between this city and the Dalles, and consequently no intelligence was received from up the Columbia as to the stage of the water However on Sunday it was learned that between 10 A M and 5 P M the river rose three inches at Wallula

Grand Jurors —In the State circuit court yesterday morning the following persons were appointed to serve as grand jurors T S [illegible] foreman William Kerns W [illegible] [illegible] P J Mann I J Robinson [illegible] Schenck and Frank Hacheney

Cinnabar —Mr A J Knott has handed us a piece of cinnabar from the mines lately discovered in the Umpqua country which appears to be very rich We are informed the ore from that district assays as rich as the famous New Almaden.

Board of Trade —To morrow evening the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held at the room Ankeny's building at 7 30 It is specially desirable to have a full attendance

ITEMS FROM GERVAIS.

' Correspondent ' writing from Gervais says The citizens of Gervais are making grand preparations to celebrate the 4th of July on Saturday the 3d inst The several committees who have the matter in hand are completing all the necessary arrangements, such as enlarging the park, digging wells erecting platforms and having a liberty car built suitable for the occasion The Grangers are also manifesting a great interest in the success of the celebration, they having invited their brother grangers to assist them in a grand parade The Aurora brass band has been engaged and Hon J [illegible] Caples of your city, has consented to deliver the oration

I send you the score of a match game of base ball played at this place on the 13th inst between the first nine of the St Paul base ball club of St Paul, and the first nine of the Nipper base ball club of Gervais in which the Nipper base ball club came out first best by the following score Nippers 46 St Pauls 1[illegible] One of the most laughable features of the game was a foul knocked by one of the Nippers in which the catcher went after it horseback, the ball having been knocked some 300 yards

A gentleman writing from Cornelius Washington county under date of the 14th says Your correspondent in company with many others from this place attended a grangers picnic at the Columbia Academy yesterday It was a very pleasant affair After the grange initiated a class in the fourth degree, all retired to the pleasant little oak grove in the rear of the academy, where the ladies spread a bountiful repast in the congenial shade All seemed to enjoy an outdoor meal A swing was in full bloom, and many a beau 'swung around the circle' with his beloved dulcina The principal amusement in the afternoon was a game of base ball played by the Cornelius Star club and a picked nine from the Glencoe and Hillsboro clubs The latter go away with the spoils Toward evening the 300 souls present wended their way homeward, well pleased with the day as spent

MORNING BIBLE READING—CHILDREN'S MEETING AT THE RINK

Active work for the day commenced at the Bible meeting held at the Baptist church under the immediate supervision of Mr Hammond About 100 earnest and sincere workers in the cause of Christ were there gathered to listen to the Word of truth, give in their testimony and perfect their plan for future work The morning exercise consisted of singing, prayer and reading of the Scripture with an exposition of the same After this a few moments were given to prayer and testimony A large number availed themselves of this opportunity and it seemed that some had come over one hundred miles to avail themselves of these meetings One could tell of a young lady who was hopefully converted yesterday, and all those who spoke of the spirit of inquiry was abroad Twenty seven written requests for prayers were handed in, embracing requests for forty-four different individuals—for husband brothers and sisters and for friends One written in a trembling hand read A brother who is going down to perdition through strong drink At the close of the Bible meeting a meeting of the revival committee was called and Dr Atkinson was elected as chairman with Miss Jennie Thompson as secretary A committee of ten was appointed—one for each daily and weekly paper published in the city whose business was to see that correct notices and reports were furnished for publication A resolution was passed that during the continuance of the union meetings, the churches should unite in a concentrated effort for the salvation of souls and that for the time being the doors of the churches should be practically closed for the reception of members

THE AFTERNOON MEETING FOR CHILDREN

Was opened in the usual manner by singing several selections from the printed slips and prayer by the Quaker Evangelist Rev Elkanah Beard Mr Hammond then proceeded to question the children in reference to the remarks made on Sunday The questions were answered very promptly until he came to the chain of five links which he wished them all to have Some of the little ones insisted upon having happiness before usefulness Mr Hammond said that he was afraid some of the children were like older Christians they wanted to be happy without being useful He then read from the 27th chapter of Matthew and made some comments upon it after which there was prayer in concert and singing when the Rev Beard stepped up on the platform and proceeded to tell them stories of little children who loved or wished to love the Saviour and some of his experiences in India The latter were very interesting and kept the attention of the children very closely during the recital After singing another selection Mr Hammond came forward and in a very simple child like way told them several stories of good and bad children illustrative of the tender forgiving love of our Savior to all While some of the smaller ones were restless and inattentive the larger portion of those present showed by their mute and rapt attention that they were deeply interested in the unpassioned words and manner of the speaker An inquiry meeting was then held and while the choir was singing the pastor and church members went to work among the congregation A number were appointed to examine the children and those who could give valid proofs of their conversion were allowed to go upon the platform Forty or fifty were thus passed up Mr Hammond spent some time in singing and prayer with them when they were dismissed There were about 400 persons present, one half of whom were children

Bible and praise meeting at the Baptist church this morning at 8 30 Meeting for young persons and children at the Rink at 6 30 this afternoon Rev Elkanah Beard and wife will be at the regular 2 o clock meeting held at Taylor street church this afternoon

A Chicago correspondent of the New York Clipper writes thus of a sudden departure 'Con T Murphy of Emerson's minstrels [illegible] glided out of town a few days ago—whither no one knoweth He left not only with his name in the bill but with a watch and chain which he borrowed from a friend and forgot to return'

As the names of the members of the Lingard troupe did not appear in the passenger list of the steamer John L. Stephens which sailed on Saturday for Portland some doubts were entertained as to whether or not the company was on board Mr Leigh S Lynch the advance agent in order to set all doubts at rest telegraphed down to San Francisco asking if the Lingards and troupe had sailed for Portland To his inquiry, he received an answer yesterday to the effect that they were all on board the steamer and might be expected to arrive here this evening Every arrangement has been made by Mr Lynch and the new theatrical season will be inaugurated on Friday evening A number of new and very attractive plays will be produced in rapid succession La Tentation (Led Astray) will be the opening piece This is a most beautiful and fascinating modern society play and will doubtless meet with great success Besides Wm Horace, Dickie and Miss Alice Dunning four other talented artists are included in the company now on their way to Portland The company will be strengthened on arriving here by the addition of Mrs Phelps Miss Morgan and Messrs Burrows and Crowell In addition to the attractions of a strong dramatic combination will be wonderful impersonations and marvelous lightening changes by Mr Lingard. Such a rich dramatic treat has not been promised our public for many years.

Lingards are on the John L Stephens and give their first performance Friday night

A PHILOSOPHICAL COLORED MAN

An elderly colored man with a very philosophical and retrospective cast of countenance, was squatting upon his bundle on the hurricane deck of one of the Western river steamers to sting his shins against the chimney and apparently plunged in a state of profound meditation His dress and appearance indicated familiarity with camp life and it being soon after the siege and capture of Fort Donelson I was inclined to disturb his reveries and on interrogation found that he had been with the Union forces at that place, when I questioned further His philosophy was so peculiar that I will give his views in his own words as near as my memory will serve me

'Were you in the fight?'

'I had a little taste of it, sa'

'Stood your ground did you?'

'No, sa, I runs'

Run at the first fire, did you?"

Yes, sa, an' would have run sooner had I known it was comin"

Why, that wasn't very creditable to your courage"

'Dat isn't in my line, sa, cookin's my professhun"

Well! but have you no regard for your reputation?"

Reputation's nuffin to me by the side of life'

Do you consider your life more than other people's?'

'It's worth more to me, sa"

"Then you must value it very highly?'

'Yes, sa, I does, more dan all this world, more dan a million dollars, sa, for what would that be wuth to a man wid de breff out of him? Self-proserbashun is the first law wid me"

'But why should you act upon a different rule from other men?'

''Cause, sa, diff'rent men sets diff'rent value upon durselves, my life is not in de market"

'But if you lost it, you would have the satisfaction of knowing that you died for your country"

"What satisfaction would dat be to me, when de power of feelin' was gone?"

"Then patriotism and honor are nothing to you?"

'Nuffin' whatever, sa"

"If our soldiers were like you, traitors might have broken up the Government without resistance"

'Yes, sa, der would have been no help for it I wouldn't put my life in de scales 'gainst any gubberment dat ever existed, for no gubberment could replace de loss to me 'Spect dough dat de gubberment safe, if da all like me"

'Do you think any of your company would have missed you, if you had been killed?"

'Maybe not, sa. A dead white man ain't much with dese sojers, let alone a dead nigga, but I'd missed myself, and dat was de pint wid me"—Exchange

THE GREAT BOSTON QUERY

HOW MUCH WHISKY DID PRESIDENT GRANT DRINK AT THE LEXINGTON AND CONCORD CELEBRATION?

BOSTON, May 26, 1875—The inquiry of how much whisky General Grant and his party drank on the occasion of their visit to the Concord and Lexington centennials promises to be an interesting and disturbing question At a meeting of the State Temperance Alliance this afternoon, presided over by ex-Governor Trask, a Mr H D Cushing stirred up the meeting by offering a resolution to the effect that a committee be appointed to ascertain and report whether liquors were furnished by the State to its guests on the occasion of the Lexington and Concord Centennial

Mr Cushing explained that his reason for offering the resolution was the fact that the newspapers have published a bill, from the Revere House, giving as one of the items in the entertainment of the President and party over $400 for wines and cigars, and thought the matter ought to be inquired into T. W Hodges suggested that it might have been found necessary to purchase a quart of liquor for bathing purposes, and the rest of the money might have been for cigars If, however, it was found on investigation that the wines were used as a beverage, the State is under no obligation to pay for them, and pay could not be collected for them in court He would throw away the moral aspects of the case entirely and put it on this plain, simple basis—if the State or its servants had encouraged crime. Mr Cushing declared that whenever the State or city had refused to furnish liquors for its guests it had been raised in the opinion of the guests, and he called upon Mr Hodges to state General Sherman's views on the matter.

Mr Hodges thereupon said that when General Sherman was entertained by the city no liquors were furnished, and there is a letter in existence from General Sherman expressive of his gratification of that fact

After a little more debate the resolution was adopted, and Messrs H D Cushing, J W Hodges, and J. H. Roberts were constituted the committee.

A PICTURE OF NIGHT IN THE MOON

At last, however, night sets in Gratefully it comes after the sun has gathered up its smiling beams and gone to its rest. All at once we are plunged into comparative obscurity, for again there is no twilight to stay the steps of departing day. At one stride comes the dark, but, looking up into the sky, we behold a vast orb, which pours down a milder and more beneficent splendor than the great lord of the system If such a moon as we terrestrials cannot boast, for it is not less than thirteen times as large and luminous as our own There it hangs in the firmament without apparent change of place as if "fixed in its everlasting seat." But not without change of surface For this great globe is a painted panorama, and, turning around majestically on its axis, presents its oceans and continents in grand succession As Europe and Africa, locking the Mediterranean in their embrace roll away to the right, the stormy Atlantic offers its waters to view, then the two Americas, with their huge forests and vast prairies pass under inspection Then the grand basin of the Pacific, lit up with island fires meets the gazer's eye, and as this glides over the scene the eastern rim of Asia and the upper portion of Australia sail into sight The Indian Ocean and afterward the Arabian Sea spread themselves out in their subdued splendor, and thus in four and twenty hours the great rotundity we tread turns its pictured countenance to the moon and grandly repays the listening lunarians by repeating to the best of its ability, the story of its births Nor is the key less marvelous in another respect For the absence of any atmospheric diffusion of light permits the constellations to shine out with a distinctness which is never paralleled on earth They glitter like diamond points set in a firmament of ebony Stars and clusters which we never see by the naked eye flock into view and crowd the lunar heavens—British Quarterly

DEBT—A weary traveler, with his money all gone, slowly but surely follows the down-hill path Before him lies a 'muddy pool' deep and wide; but "gold" is on the other side He must reach it though he is penniless, but how? Borrow Turn O friend, while there is life and energy Follow the banks; wait, the Lord will help those who help themselves Do not take it in your own hands, do not borrow, do not, for your life, attempt to cross the pool of debt. He heeds not, he borrows and the first step is taken Again, and he sinks deeper, but gold is on the other side He can soon reach it; all will be paid Again he borrows, to keep life while he goes on Now he is midway In vain he looks back, he cannot return, and he finds himself sinking deeper, deeper Soon he is beset on all sides, and with the cry, 'Pay me" ringing in his ears, he sinks to rise no more—Sel ected

Our latest advices from Liverpool give the wheat market at that point at 8s 10d@11d for average California and club at 10d@11d per cental

Some time since we published from an eastern mercantile circular the total number of failures in the United States during the year 1874 from which it was seen that the proportion of such failures in Oregon was very small compared with the amount of business transactions. The fact spoke well for the soundness of business men generally in Oregon The present year so far makes even a better showing and but few occurrences of the kind have yet been noted, while from other states we hear by every mail stale grains and mail of the succumbing of business men and firms to the pressure incident to dull times or over trading The Boston Bulletin reports 15 failures and suspensions in the last week in May in New England five of them dealers in or manufacturers of boots and shoes In New York and other trade centers a corresponding per centage is noted in the newspapers and if the same ratio is kept up it will be necessary for the commercial writers to find out some other source of these failures than the panic of 1873 to which they have nearly all so far been attributed

The first business day of the week has developed but little worthy of extended comment the financial condition being essentially unchanged from the quiet state of the demand the fair supply and a general disposition on the part of men to avoid speculative investments. Rates at the banks and on the street are nominally steady, good commercial paper being in fair request at the minimum rates of discount while real estate loans are made on terms perhaps a little less favorable to the borrower

The Tonnage Question

Those who do the shipping business of this country of course are the ones who know what has been done in the matter of securing the tonnage which will be necessary to carry away the surplus of the grain crop after the approaching harvest As yet but little has been developed to show what course the market will take In 1874 at this period in the season over fifty vessels had been reported to be on the way to Portland under charter to load grain and although that estimate may have been too large there is no doubt that the number amounted to two score whereas at present there is no evidence made public to show that more than one-fourth that number are now under charter to load with the crops of 1875

The same state of affairs exists in California in regard to this tonnage question The Commercial Herald's freight circular for June in reviewing the business of the past month states that a year ago at this date more than 100 ships were under charter to load wheat for the United Kingdom (here and to arrive) at £3 and upwards But at this date the present season so far as advised not five ships have yet been secured for the new crop at any price, nor do we know of any Liverpool grain charters now offering even at £2 10s In fact there seems to be a wonderful degree of apathy abroad upon the subject The disastrous outturn of the shipping season now drawing to a close seems disheartening to all hitherto engaged in the business, and unless some new element appears speedily we must look disparagingly upon an active summer and fall export wheat trade

Although it is a fact to be regretted it must be admitted that the prospect in this market has much of this discouraging element and hence exporters seem indisposed to take a favorable view of things and will take up no vessel for the future trade until some of the doubts which now hang over the market, both for cargoes and charters, are removed

Domestic Produce.

In the wheat market there is scarcely any activity, though occasionally we hear of small lots changing hands. The agent of the grangers sold a lot to-day at $1 55 per cental, which as near as can be given, is the ruling figure, or, at least, about that on which transactions are made, when made at all As to the future of the grain market it is yet dark, and few only are willing to make purchases on speculation Concerning wheat the San Francisco Commercial Herald of the 10th inst says

Thus far but little new wheat or barley has been marketed nor do we perceive any desire upon the part of growers to hurry their grain forward or even to enter into contracts for forward delivery The fact is that farmers upon this coast as a body are rich and independent and will not sell their wheat unless they can realize net one dollar per bushel for the same Some of our dealers in grain have an idea that they will be able to buy wheat of standard quality at $1 60 ₱ ctl delivered at tide-water but we are inclined to think that $1 60@1 65 will be nearer for delivery in June and July Freights without doubt are bound to rule low all the season owing to a superabundant supply here and en route The crop question having been well nigh settled so far as the probable wheat yield is concerned an effort is now made in certain quarters to make it appear that a considerable quantity of standing over ripe grain has been prematurely threshed out by high winds and lost to the grower Now the truth is but very little wheat was sufficiently ripe last week to be thus whipped out and besides little suffered but that of a new variety known as the Proper or Chile white And again the few fields that have been thus threshed out by the wind will serve for seed for a next year's volunteer crop and have one advantage of being sown early and certainly will serve to fat ten droves of hogs.

We are inclined to believe that the feeling among farmers in Oregon is that prices will be higher in the fall than now and hence it is not likely that the season will open very active though Oregon farmers do not all hold out for $1 per bushel for their wheat when they can do better by selling it for what they can get

Oats are coming forward yet though the receipts are somewhat reduced Quotations are unchanged

The wool market exhibits some activity and quite a number of buyers are on hand though offers are not showing any upward tendency the ruling quotations being 20@25c at the extremes

Ayer's Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY RELIEF OF

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

Has been widely used during the last twenty-five years in the treatment of these distressing diseases and with such unvarying success that it has gained the reputation of being infallible The shakes or chills once broken by it do not return until the disease is contracted again This has made it an accepted remedy and trusted specific for the Fever and Ague of the West and the Chills and Fever of the south.

Ayers Ague Cure eradicates the noxious poison from the system and leaves the patient as well as before the attack It thoroughly expels the disease so that no Liver Complaints Rheumatism Neuralgia Dysentery or Debility follow the cure Indeed where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels have occurred from Miasmatic Poison it removes the cause of them and they disappear Not only is it an effectual cure but if taken occasionally by patients exposed to malaria it will expel the poison and protect them from attack Travelers and temporary residents in Fever and Ague localities are thus enabled to defy the disease The General Debility which is so apt to ensue from continued exposure to Malaria and Miasm has no speedier remedy

For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy
